OB. NO. 2000.

TWO PHASES OF REFORM.

FISCAL AND SOCIAL.
SPEECH BY MR. BALFOUR.
UNIONISTS MUST UNITE.

DRUCE PROSECUTION.

MRS. ROBINSON ARRESTED.
HER ANTECEDENTS.

LONDON, Jan. 18. At the instance of the Director of Public Prosecutions, Mary Robinson, late of New Zealand, whose diary was a prominent feature of the evidence of the Druse case, has been arrested on a charge of perjury. She was brought before Sir Alfred de Rutzen, at the Bow-street police court.

Sir Charles Mathews, who appeared to prosecute on behalf of the Treasury, stated that Mrs. Robinson's evidence at the Druse hearing was a tissue of falsehoods.

Admiral Makoto Saito, Japanese Minister of Marine, interviewed at Tokio, stated that he is willing to make an announcement respecting the distribution of the Japanese fleet if there is any need to allay excitement, but he declares that the rumour about in America is hardly worth attention.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, speaking at a great Unionist demonstration at Glasgow yesterday, admitted the difficulty of the problems ahead of the party, but he asserted that the dangers connected with fiscal reform were far less than those associated with social reform. Both reforms were difficult to accomplish, and both were necessary.

If the Unionists aspired to achieve these reforms the two small though not important extreme wings who found it difficult to work with the vast solid main body must sink their differences and agree to co-operate.

Mr. Balfour said he was convinced that the great body of the party favoured a moderate and resolute policy of fiscal reform. If mutual concessions enabled effectual common action to be undertaken the country would rejoice in the most reckless Government which had ever held office, and would call to power men with a constitutional imperial policy.

TO REMOVE UNEMPLOYMENT.

LABOUR CONFERENCE.

CHARITY'S DRAISING EFFECT.

SHORTER HOURS WIDEN DISTRIBUTION.

LONDON, Jan. 18. A majority of the conference of the Labour party at Hull attended a special conference of trade union, socialist and co-operative organisations on unemployment.

Mr. Peter Curran, M.P. (Labour), for Jarrold, who presided, said that the £200,000, which had been granted for the relief of the unemployed from Government funds was a mere drop in the ocean. They would not accept Government philanthropy or help under charity conditions.

"As long as the law of private enterprise," Mr. Curran said, "is the guiding principle of the world's industry and commerce we shall always have unemployment." They would not solve the problem until they curtailed the income of the rich in possession, and thereby added to the income of the poor.

They desired, Mr. Curran continued, legislation to prevent the chaos and ruin which would follow the uprising of the people crying for bread.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, M.P. (Labour), who protested against the habit of voting money in a panic, proposed a motion declaring that unemployment was not caused by freeloading, and was not averted by periods of good trade, but was a permanent feature of the present industrial organisation. The resolution urged a vigorous use of legislative and administrative powers, including the shortening of the hours of public and other employees, and protection of land and other properties. The resolution concluded by calling upon the Government to fulfil its promises contained in the King's speech of 1906, and amend the Unemployed Act. Such amendment to be satisfactory must embody the principles of the Labour Party's Bill.

Mr. J. O'Grady, M.P. (Labour), East Leamington, seconded the resolution. He said that the unemployed fund established by the Queen, though prompted by a woman with a big heart, had done more real damage to the common manhood among the unemployed than anything of the last 20 years. It degraded, debased, and demoralised them.

The motion was carried with enthusiasm.

BY-ELECTION.

A UNIONIST GAIN.

LONDON, Jan. 17. The election for the representation of Mid-Devon in the House of Commons, the vacancy being due to the elevation of the member, Mr. H. T. Eve (Liberal) to the Judicial Bench, has resulted in the return of a Unionist, Captain Morrison-Bell by a majority of 539 over Mr. Bixton (Liberal). The polling was—

Captain Morrison-Bell (Unionist)... 5191
Mr. Bixton (Liberal)... 4622

At the general election in 1906 the polling was—Mr. Bixton (Liberal)... 5,000; Captain Morrison-Bell... 2,764. The registered number of voters was 10,429. Thus, in the election of Friday, the Unionist vote shows an increase of 1,265, and the Liberal a decrease of 447, the increase in the total votes polled being 96.

THE TEST MATCHES.

REAL CRICKET WANTED.

NOT TRIALS OF ENDURANCE.

LONDON, Jan. 17. The "Tribune," commenting on the recent test matches, says: "The public here are growing weary of the procedure observed with respect to the test matches, which will soon be reduced to trials of endurance. The duration of test matches ought to be limited to four days, which would be an incentive for each side to play real cricket, and get rid of much ignoble stonewalling."

THE ATTENDANCE.

ADELAIDE, Sunday. According to the official figures, the total attendance at the test match was 30,822. The takings were £2176 1s. 6d.

UNITED STATES UNEASY.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.

LOCATION OF JAPAN'S FLEET.

LONDON, Jan. 18. Despatches from Washington report that uneasiness exists there owing to semi-monthly reports respecting the distribution of the Japanese fleet.

Admiral Makoto Saito, Japanese Minister of Marine, interviewed at Tokio, stated that he is willing to make an announcement respecting the distribution of the Japanese fleet if there is any need to allay excitement, but he declares that the rumour about in America is hardly worth attention.

Sir Charles Mathews, who appeared to prosecute on behalf of the Treasury, stated that Mrs. Robinson's evidence at the Druse hearing was a tissue of falsehoods.

Police testimony showed that Mrs. Robinson was the daughter of a policeman named Webb, and that she married a butcher named Robinson. When told this, Mrs. Robinson exclaimed: "Good God, who told you that?" Her sister had been traced.

Accused was remanded, bail being refused.

In the witness-box Mary Robertson, who was styled Miss Robinson, produced a diary written in Japanese, with reference to Charles Dickens, the fifth Duke of Portland, and T. C. Druse. According to a cable from Christchurch, New Zealand, the diary was written by Mrs. Robinson. She is described as from 25 to 30 years, exceedingly excitable in manner, and by some people she is considered to be a tramp. She was unable to give her name. She was a maid in a boarding-house in a Liberal club in Christchurch. In September of that year Mrs. Robinson met Sir Alfred de Rutzen, at the corner of Lambton Quay and Victoria Street, on January 1, 1907, and became his mistress. She was a maid in a school in Christchurch. There was also a very valuable and extensive collection of old Derby china.

THE PAVEMENT ARTIST.

A PIONEER IN CHALK.

His "stand" was near the Milson's Point wharf. He was unshaven and unkempt, and there was that about his garb that was described as "the look of a vagabond." Standing back to note the effects of the last application of cerulean blue to the sky or a sketch that splashed the pavement with vivid colour, he rubbed a reflective forefinger over the chalky dash he had just drawn on the sidewalk.

"Ever attend an art class?" asked the newspaper man.

"No," replied the aeronaut: "I'm a painter. 'Shutes' are all right, and in half an hour I can paint a picture that will be a mighty cheer followed the daring performer.

MIXED MARRIAGES.

PRIEST EXPLAINS THE LAW.

Yesterday morning, at St. Patrick's Church, Botany, the Rev. Mr. J. T. O'Farrell, Father Chadoeuf, died at some length with the last of the Roman Catholic Church in regard to marriage. On the subject of mixed marriages, which at present attracts so large a share of public attention, he explained the law (which comes into effect on Easter Sunday next) as follows:

In case of the marriage of a Catholic with a non-Catholic, the non-Catholic has not been baptised, or if he has, has not taken place before a registrar elsewhere than a Catholic church, it is absolutely null.

If the non-Catholic party has been baptised, but is not a member of the Roman Catholic Church, the marriage is prohibited, but is not null.

It may be asked, "What if the priest satisfies himself that there is no danger of the Catholic party becoming converted to any other faith?" If the Catholic party has been baptised, every endeavour to convert the non-Catholic party will be futile if the children of the marriage are to be brought up in the Catholic Church.

The objections of the Church to mixed marriage, said the preacher, were that there could be no proper union, nor that perfection of mutual love and happiness which was necessary for the permanence and practice of a Roman Catholic marriage, where the two parties were divided in their beliefs. Moreover, there was a danger of the children being brought up in either of the two creeds of no religion at all; since if the non-Catholic party were zealous, he would hinder their own children's Catholicism, indifferent, or neglect them. Lastly, there was the experience of the Church had shown, a grave danger that a Catholic who married a non-Catholic would become converted to his spouse. There were, indeed, a certain number of conspicuous conversions to the Catholic Church due to mixed marriage, but the impatience of the converts to the new faith was often greater, who pointed out that if religions were determined by origin, about half of the population of the United States ought to be Catholics. The author of the article mentioned to only one-sixth of it, a result which he was dissatisfied.

AN ANGLICAN VIEW.

The Rev. W. G. Smith, presiding at St. James' Church, Phillip-street, last night, upon the subject of marriage and courtship, touched incidentally upon the new law of the Church.

He said that his congregation must all have noticed that the Roman Catholic Church was taking a strict line with regard to the mixed marriage, and that they must be surprised at this. He supposed that the principal cause of defection from the Roman communion was this one mixed marriage, and of course, every Christian who had a right to exercise discipline within its own body.

The Church, he said, was with the Roman Catholic, who was as far as the new departure of the Roman Catholic Church was concerned. While mixed marriage might still be held by the State as a punishment, it was not held by the Church, though such marriage as though they had not been duly contracted.

It seemed to him most reasonable, in view of the fact that the Church had given up the Christian teaching, should explain what the difference was between civil marriage and the religious idea of marriage; and all parishes should try to induce their people to do this, and see to it that they might have in preventing their children from drifting into these mixed marriages.

Added as his personal opinion that the Roman Catholic Church would not prevent mixed marriages; and he had no doubt that with her usual ingenuity she would discover some way of adapting her practice to circumstances.

OREGON RABBIT DISEASE.

LETTER FROM PROFESSOR JORDAN.

NOT HELPFUL IN AUSTRALIA.

Professor Jordan of the Leland Stanford University, at the request of a Sydney friend, has been seeking information relative to the Oregon rabbit disease, which a New South Wales squatter sought to introduce here as a steward in growing the diseased animals out of the United States, and introduced according to his own words, "indirectly" to the Australian Government through marriage as though they had not been duly contracted. It seemed to him most reasonable, in view of the fact that the Church had given up the Christian teaching, should explain what the difference was between civil marriage and the religious idea of marriage; and all parishes should try to induce their people to do this, and see to it that they might have in preventing their children from drifting into these mixed marriages.
